

Invitation to a joint
CSIS Mexico Project & Global Aging Initiative
Policy Forum

Building Human Capital in an Aging Mexico

The forum will present the findings of a new CSIS report, Building Human Capital in an Aging Mexico. Today, there are nine Mexican children for every Mexican elder—but by mid-century, there will be as many elders as children. The report explores how this stunning demographic transformation will reshape Mexico's economy and society. Will Mexico manage to boost living standards in advance of the age wave—or will it grow old before it grows rich? What are the implications for cross-border trade, investment, and immigration? Are there potential demographic and economic synergies between Mexico and the United States? The CSIS Mexico Project and Global Aging Initiative invite you to join us for a discussion of these issues.

Chaired by

Armand Peschard-Sverdrup, Director, CSIS Mexico Project

Presenter:

Richard Jackson, Senior Fellow and Director, CSIS Global Aging Initiative

Discussants:

James R. Jones, Chairman, Manatt, Jones Global Strategies

Wednesday, September 7, 2005

3:00 PM to 5:30 PM

Center for Strategic and International Studies

1800 K Street, NW, Washington, DC

B1 Conference Level (Room C)

Please R.S.V.P. to Keisuke Nakashima by COB Tuesday September 6, 2005 at <knakashima@csis.org> or fax this form to (202) 775-3199:

_____ I will attend.

_____ I cannot attend.

NAME: _____

TITLE: _____

AFFILIATION: _____

PHONE: _____

EMAIL: _____